Alta, Norway

By Kat Nickola

Venture into the Arctic this winter at the northernmost city in the world. Alta, Norway hugs the rugged coastline of the Altafjord and is the gateway town for adventurers heading into the Finnmark Plateau, the cultural home of the Sami people.

Rock carvings from 7000 years ago have been found along the shoreline throughout the area showing the prehistoric reindeer herds of the Stone Age people who called this area home. There are scenes of hunting, fishing, and sailing in elaborate boats; activities that still draw tourists to the area.

In winter, the Polar Night of northern Norway, there are roughly six weeks when the sun does not peak above the horizon. However, the daytime hours are immersed in a perpetual twilight of magical bluish luminosity as the sun's light reflects off the sky, sea and snow. The aurora borealis, or northern lights, also adds beautiful luminescent greens, blues and sometimes pinks to the dark night sky.

Each winter, the Sorrisniva Arctic Wilderness Lodge along the Alta River builds the world's northernmost igloo hotel from ice harvested in the valley upstream. Offering all kinds of Polar Night fun like snowmobiling, dog sledding and snowshoeing, the igloo hotel makes a luxuriously frigid home base for winter exploration. ■

Liechtenstein

By Kyle Haney

“Liechtenstein may only be 62 square miles in size, but it still packs tons of activities!”

The red carrot burger on grain bread with their signature pepper mayo, cucumber, tomato and lettuce, along with sweet potato fries served with garlic and herbs are two of the many vegetarian dishes available at Scanaua Restaurant & Bar.

EAT Liechtenstein may be small but that doesn't limit the variety of cuisines available. During my visit to Liechtenstein, I found a delicious menu at the Scanaua Restaurant & Bar, in the town of Schaan. As a vegetarian, sticking to plants while traveling can be difficult, but not at Scanaua! They served one of the best vegetarian burgers I've had in Europe! Not only that, but they also have a wonderful beer selection on tap that's perfect after a hike in the Alps or a day on the nearby slopes.

STAY

Liechtenstein can accommodate anyone, from night owls to secluded love birds. Are you looking to burn the midnight oil? Then stay near downtown Schaan or Vaduz for a livelier scene. More interested in cozying up with your significant other? Then stay in the quiet little ski town of Malbun for a real Telluride feel. However, because Liechtenstein is quite small, it is possible that accommodations can fill quickly. Fear not! You can easily stay just across the border in Switzerland and commute in as little as 10 minutes. I stayed at a great Airbnb just outside Grabs, Switzerland and had an amazing experience!

LOVE

Liechtenstein may only be 62 square miles in size, but it still packs tons of activities! Depending on the time of year you choose to visit, Liechtenstein offers something for everyone.

If you visit in the winter, then I recommend skiing in the quaint mountain town of Malbun. Sure, there are only five lifts and 23km of skiing, but with how hidden this gem is, you're sure to fill your day with lap after lap of uninterrupted runs. When your legs are sufficiently smoked and your soul is completely recharged, don't forget to head into town and grab a pizza from one of the mom-and-pop pizzerias before making your way back to your accommodation.

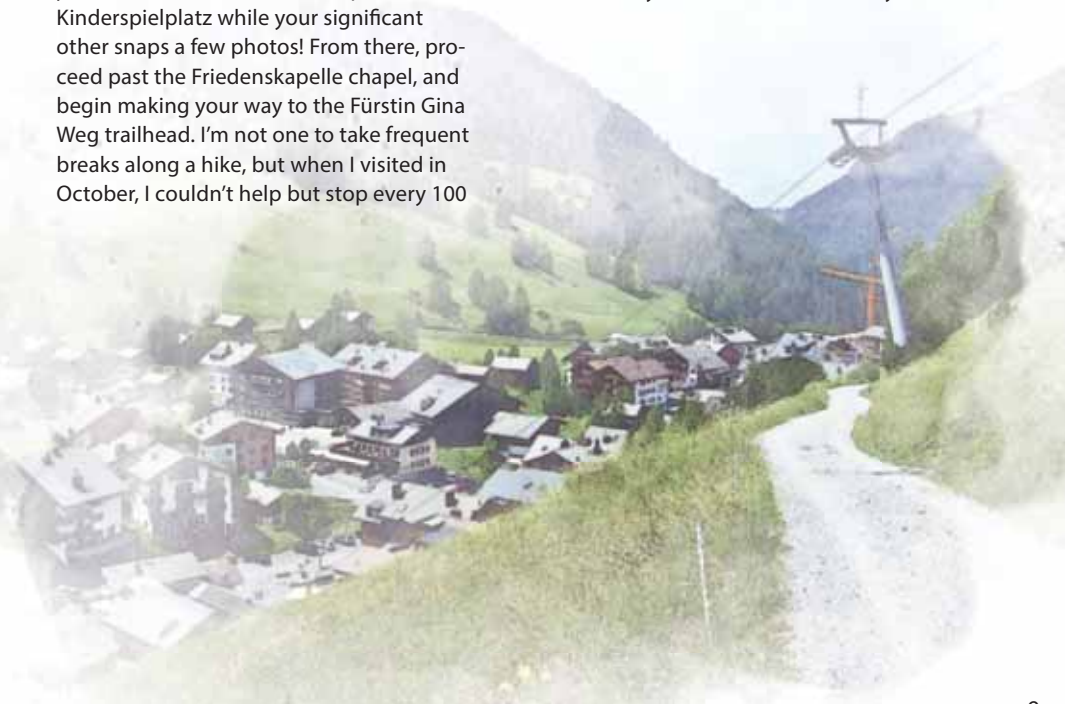

If you plan on visiting in the summer, then I recommend hiking the Fürstin Gina Weg trail. Translated as the Princess Gina Way, this 12.2-km loop begins and ends in the Fun fact: In 1968, Malbun's ski resort was accidentally struck by five Swiss artillery shells, damaging a few of the chairs! Nobody was injured, but I'm sure the locals weren't too impressed.

town of Malbun. It traverses along the Liechtenstein-Austria border and provides breathtaking views of the Alps at every turn. To do this hike, park your car for free at the Parkhaus Malbun. Then, give in to your inner child and ride the zipline at the Kinderspielplatz while your significant other snaps a few photos! From there, proceed past the Friedenskapelle chapel, and begin making your way to the Fürstin Gina Weg trailhead. I'm not one to take frequent breaks along a hike, but when I visited in October, I couldn't help but stop every 100 yards or so given the fantastic views all around! The trail eventually summits at the top of Augstenberg mountain. From this point, you'll be able to view Austria to the east, Switzerland to the north and south, and the tiny town of Malbun below you. ■

Pub Crawling

IN CAMBRIDGE

By Carrie Farrell

Picture yourself ducking through a crooked doorway into a dimly lit room. As your eyes adjust to the cozy ambiance, you notice the eclectic décor – wooden interiors with framed photographs capturing moments of the past and perhaps a fireplace crackling in the corner. The low hum of conversation surrounds you, interrupted by bursts of laughter and the clinking of glasses. The atmosphere is filled with the comforting scent of well-worn leather upholstery, aged timber, and a hint of malt from the ales on tap. A pub is the perfect place to enjoy a round of pints and top-notch grub.

So, what's a _____ PUB CRAWL?

At its essence, a pub crawl is when you visit a few pubs and have at least one drink in each. It's about meeting new people and enjoying shared experiences. There is rarely any actual crawling unless you drink so much that you eventually can no longer remain upright. In Cambridge, a pub crawl offers a delightful experience with over a hundred pubs, conveniently located a few yards apart.

Setting STARTED

My first pub crawl was spontaneous. My friends and I casually moseyed from one pub to the next and enjoyed a brew at each one. Enticed by crafted signs showcasing whimsical and eccentric names, we ventured into each establishment with no knowledge-led expectations.

My familiarity with British ales and cider was nonexistent. I asked a ton of questions while staring at the wide selection of drinks available.

I may have, not-so-politely, resorted to ordering by way of pointing in an "I'll have what he's having" fashion.

Going PRO

During another visit to Cambridge, we booked an organized crawl. Our guide, William (nope, not that William), was so much fun and knowledgeable about the history of each pub.

Our itinerary, near Parker's Piece, included unique and cozy pubs like The Clarendon Arms, The Elm Tree, The Free Press, The Tram Depot, and The Old Bicycle Shop. All are notable pubs with great atmosphere. Our group sipped through a selection of real ales, draught beer and wines, all while feasting on hearty British favorites such as fish and chips and Shepherd's pie.

Off-the-beaten-path recommendations from our guide added a layer of adventure. The Old Ticket Office, near the Cambridge Rail Station, is

Each pub is UNIQUE.
The walls tell
STORIES

Pub Grub

Curb your hunger with these quintessentially British pub foods.

PIE AND CHIPS

Savory pies make a hearty meal and are usually served with a side of peas and chips. Pies are baked with a shortcrust pastry and are filled with a combination of delicious chunky meat and veggies. For something traditional, try a steak and kidney or ham and leek pie.

SUNDAY ROAST

Typical Sunday fare, a roast may be made with beef or lamb. A roast usually comes with potatoes of any variety: mashed, roasted or fried. You can also expect a nice robust gravy, and, possibly, a side of vegetables or a Yorkshire pudding.

BANGERS & MASH

A 'banger' is typically a pork sausage, while the 'mash' is short for mashed potatoes. For this dish, a couple of bangers are often perched atop a pile of mash before the whole thing is doused in gravy. Perhaps there will also be peas.

FISH AND CHIPS

Likely the most well-known pub fare, fish and chips are a fried and salty taste treat perfect for pairing with pub beverages. The fish may be cod, plaice or haddock and is at its best when spritzed with salt and vinegar. On the side, you will find tartar sauce and a pile of mushy peas.

SHEPHERD'S PIE OR COTTAGE PIE

Neither of these special pies has a pastry crust. Instead, a minced meat and vegetable filling is placed in a small stoneware dish, topped with mashed potatoes and baked to perfection. The difference? Shepherd's pie has mince of lamb, while cottage pie has a mince of beef. ■ pure eye candy with its stunning restoration and a diverse lineup of craft beer, cider and spirits.

The Eagle, dating back to the 14th century, stands out as one of the oldest pubs. During World War II, Allied airmen used wax candles, lighters, and lipstick to write their names and other doodles onto the ceiling. Boasting even more historical significance, it was here in 1953 that scientists Francis Crick and James Watson announced the discovery of DNA, thus immortalizing the pub forever.

The pub crawl captures the essence of Cambridge's history and provides a memorable exploration of the city's rich drinking culture. Each pub is unique. The walls tell stories, and every piece within seems to have a history. Even if you have no interest in drinking, it's worth a peek inside.

Fan the Flames at a German Therme

By Kat Nickola

You can't live in Germany and not take a dip into sauna culture by visiting a therme (tare-muh). Defined by its use of natural hot springs, a therme will have spring-fed pools, saunas and relaxation spaces. Typically, the thermal pool area is for people of all ages wearing swimsuits, while a separate spa or sauna space is 'textile-free' and for adults only.

While the pools are a fun way to test the waters, it's really the spa and saunas that my husband and I love for a romantic getaway. These are spaces full of relaxation beds, themed rooms, smaller spring-fed pools, outdoor spaces, and a variety of saunas. Treatments like massages aren't a huge part of the experience but can be added. If nudity is uncharted water for you, it's fine to keep on a wrapped towel in the sauna, and wearing a robe while walking around is the norm.

How to visit the spa

- Book tickets (and hotel) ahead.
- Bring a robe, towel and flip-flops.
- Sauna spaces are co-ed, and nudity is required (no swimsuits).
- Undress and store your items in the locker room.
- A wristband will allow purchases; pay on your way out.
- It's cool to wear your robe or towel when walking around.
- Take off your robe to enter a sauna, but use your towel to sit on.
- Cell phones are prohibited; books are welcome.
- Sauna experiences, which are included in your entry fee, will be scheduled on a board near the entrance.

For readers who are wet behind the ears, here are some highly-rated therme's for your first plunge.

Mineraltherme Böblingen, Stuttgart

Near Panzer Kaserne south of Stuttgart, this relaxed therme is a local favorite. With five indoor and outdoor hot thermal waters, and even a music-themed floating pool, it is super relaxing. The spa area has lots of themed saunas, including some fun ones out in the pretty landscaped garden. It's a great local spot for a first dip.

www.mineraltherme-boeblingen.de

SchwabenQuellen, Stuttgart

Located in the SI-Centrum entertainment center, this huge therme is usually a fully textile-free spa, but the first Saturday of each month allows bathers with swimsuits. With around-the-world theming, you can swim in the Caribbean, relax in an Egyptian hot tub, nap in the Japanese lounge, bake inside the Canadian log cabin or try the Tibetan meditation sauna. The surrounding SI-Centrum makes this a weekend getaway with two hotels, stage performances, movie theaters and numerous restaurants to choose from.

www.schwabenquellen.online

Taunus Therme, Bad Homburg

North of Frankfurt, this Asian-themed therme leans into the theming so much you may just feel like you stepped off the airplane on the other side of the world. You can swim in the heated outdoor pools of the Japanese-inspired garden, relax in the colorful Persian-inspired rooms and feel the heat of the many saunas.

www.taunus-therme.de

Weidener Thermenwelt, Weiden

Just over a half hour from Vilseck or Grafenwöhr, this local therme is a wonderful place to take the plunge. The pool space is family-friendly, but the spa area is where you want to be. With indoor and outdoor spaces, this quiet spa has saunas, relaxing infusions and interesting resting spaces sure to help you reconnect. For a girls' day out, Wednesdays are female-only.

www.weidener-thermenwelt.de

Caracalla Therme or Friedrichsbad, Baden Baden

The hot springs in Baden-Baden were first used by Celts before the area was built up as a wellness destination by the Roman army. To relive the history, visit the Friedrichsbad therme where a set ritual along 17 stations is said to rejuvenate the body. If relaxation is more your style, visit the modern Caracalla Therme down the road with its large thermal pools and unique sauna spaces perfect for a calm day together. Both facilities use the local mineral-rich thermal water, and there are plenty of local hotels to choose from.

www.carasana.de

Therme Erding, Munich

In northern Munich, this tropical resort claims to be the world's biggest spa. In addition to the thermal pools, the erlebnisbad is an adventure pool area full of water slides. However, it's the Roman-themed 'Sauna World' that makes this a couple's paradise. With a massive thermal pool, a plethora of themed saunas, swim-up watering holes, and unique scheduled experiences, it's easy to while away a special day. The attached nautical-themed Hotel Victory offers packages.
