MARKETS

o matter the season, a trip to the farmers' market, or Bauernmarkt in German, is a much-loved activity for many. Wandering through stalls, seeing gorgeous fruits and vegetables of the season, grabbing jars of local honey or preserves and maybe talking with local vendors (a great way to practice your German), there is always something new to discover and get excited about. Luckily, towns big and small throughout the state of Rheinland-Pfalz host weekly markets so that wherever you live, you can find your own go-to market. However, don't limit yourself to just one, as each market will have some unique products and specialties.

Most farmers' markets will offer fresh vegetables, fruits, flowers, eggs, meat and sausages, cheese and bread, but you may also find fish, baked goods, honey, soaps and other unique products. Here are some markets worth exploring:

KAISERSLAUTERN

Tuesday and Saturday from 7 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. in Königstrasse

LANDSTUHL

Friday from 7 a.m. to 12 p.m. outside Stadthalle Landstuhl

WIESBADEN

Wednesday and Saturday from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the Dern'sches Gelände

FRANKFURT

Thursday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. and Saturday from 8 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Konstablerwache

MANNHEIM

Tuesday and Thursday from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. and Saturday from 7 a.m. to 3 p.m. in the Market Square

HOMBURG

Tuesday and Friday from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the Market Square

METZ

Covered market, Tuesday through Saturday from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. in the Cathedral Square

LUXEMBOURG CITY

Wednesday and Saturday from 7:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Place Emile Hamilius

MAINZ

Tuesday, Friday and Saturday from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the City Center

DARMSTADT/HESSEN

Wednesday and Saturday from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the Marktplatz

TRIER

Tuesday and Friday from 7 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Viehmarkt Square or Augustinerhof

ZWEIBRÜCKEN

Friday from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Hallplatz

SAARBRUCKEN

Saturday from 7 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Gustav-Regler-Platz

Event dates and times are subject to change, so be sure to check websites and local resources to verify the schedule and any restrictions or guidelines for attending the market.

THINGS TO KNOW

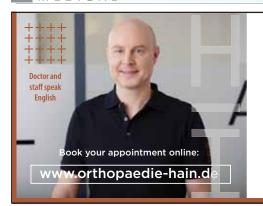

sometimes vendors do not accept card. Always bring your own bags in case vendors do not provide them. No one wants to be left scrambling around and carrying too much. Pack your patience, particularly on weekends, because you may have to wait in line to pick out your favorite might find at the supermarket, but remember you're paying for fresh and local produce, supporting local farmers and receiving high-quality products.

Many of these cities also offer flea markets and other opportunities to buy local goods, so make market events in your area. Shopping at your town's farmers' market is a great way to feel more connected to your town and community. It also helps you discover what the region specializes in, often providing inspiration and ideas for your home cooking.

As the summer starts to slowly fade and the breezes feel crisper, Volksfeste begin to pop up in villages around Germany. Tis the season ... Oktoberfest season! Whether you've been here for years or just a few weeks, Oktoberfest is one of those festivals you should experience at least once during your time here. And if you decide to brave the crowds and hit up the original in Munich, here's a little history and things to know before you go.

Little History

Oktoberfest has always been a festival for the people. On Oct. 12, 1810, Crown Prince Ludwig (who later became King Ludwig I) married Princess Therese of Saxony-Hildburghausen. To celebrate, the newlyweds invited the citizens of Munich to join festivities in the fields outside the city gates. The event was such a success, that the decision was made to hold the festival annually. Thus, Oktoberfest was born.

The first carnival rides were added in 1818, with beer and food booths popping up shortly after. Due to the exploding popularity in the beer stalls, the first beer tent was erected in 1869. Initially only held over a few days, more and more events were added to the festival. Spanning between 17 and 18 days, Oktoberfest was gradually shifted from October into September to accommodate the more temperate weather. What started as a local wedding festival has now grown into a behemoth event with nearly seven million visitors each year.

inor Details

Congratulations! You've made the decision to head to Munich for the world's largest Volksfest! It's time to start getting prepped, my friend. Actually, you probably should have started making arrangements a few months ago. But don't fret—there are still plenty of options available and plenty of time to get it figured out.

Lodging and Transportation. Look into places farther from the city center, close to S-Bahn or U-Bahn lines. Oktoberfest is located in the heart of Munich with no less than seven U-Bahn stations surrounding Theresiwiesen (the festival ground). We stayed on the outskirts of the city and took the U-Bahn to Goetheplatz. We followed the sea of Lederhosen straight to the fest in less than 10 minutes. Don't drive. There is no parking in the area, and the sheer volume of taxis creates massive traffic jams and delays.

Be Prepared. Be sure to bring only what you need. Bags and large back-packs won't be allowed, and there will be a lot of security checks when you enter the fest grounds as well as the tents. When purchasing your garb, check to see if it has pockets. I was lucky that my Dirndl had them. All I brought was enough cash for the day, my ID and my phone.

It's Not Cheap. The prices at Oktoberfest are borderline extortion. When you add up the average cost of a Maß of beer, food and transportation, one visit can cost upwards of 50 euros. Bring plenty of cash, as credit cards may not be accepted in all locations. Carry extra if you're planning on riding the rides or playing midway games.

Timing is Everything. If you can, plan on going between Monday and Thursday. It'll be busy, but not nearly as crazy as it is on the weekends. During the week, you won't have much difficulty finding a spot at unreserved tables or benches. However, if you have a large party and plan on going over a weekend, you may be out of luck. Tables are often booked well in advance. If you didn't make reservations, split your party into smaller groups, and designate a time and meeting place. Just remember the earlier you go, the more luck you'll have in getting a spot.

Family Matters. Oktoberfest is quite family friendly. Tuesdays are family days, and special discounts on rides are offered to families. If you bring your kids into the tents, a parent or guardian must be with them at all times. Children must leave the tents by 8 p.m. Teens between the ages of 16 and 17 may be served beer, but no hard alcohol. Those 18 and older have no restrictions.

With close to seven million visitors each year, it can be easy to brush Munich's Oktoberfest to the side. There are plenty of others to choose from. However, there is nothing quite as magical and fun as the original.

he Unwritten Rules

Now that you've gotten the nitty-gritty details figured out, it's time to have some fun! Hang on ... there are a few unwritten rules you should brush up on.

- Know your limits. It's easy to get caught up in the atmosphere and get a little crazy. Think of it as a marathon and not a sprint. Stay hydrated (with water), and be respectful of yourself and others. If you get too crazy and start acting like a disrespectful jerk, the beer proprietors will have no problem tossing you out.
- Dancing is encouraged. But whatever you do, don't dance on the tables. The benches, yes. Tabletops, no. Unless you want security to escort you out, keep it off the table.
- What is imbibed in the tent, stays in the tent. Unless you've bought a stein (be sure to have your receipt handy), do not take the tent stein home with you. These aren't free souvenirs, so please don't assume you get a five-finger discount. Staff will often check bags on the way out, so just leave the stein on the table.
- ▶ Eat all the things. The fest food is fantastic. Roasted chicken, savory "käsespätzle," succulent pork knuckles and "knödels," "pommes frites" and of course, the doughy goodness of pretzels. The only item I wouldn't recommend are the gingerbread cookies. Those are more decorative than anything.
- Be nice and tip. With close to seven million visitors, the servers in the tents are going to be busy. An ounce of kindness and patience go a long way. The kinder you are, the more attentive the service. This is also one of the few times when tips are expected, usually about 10 percent.
- ➤ You'll make friends fast. When you sit down, you'll likely be sitting at a table with people you've never met. In our first tent, we sat with a lovely couple from Augsburg on their honeymoon and a man that was already two liters in. In our last tent, we toasted with an elderly couple that didn't speak a word of English, but who managed to converse with us in our broken German. ■

Oktoberfest Eats:

Semmelknödel, Bavarian Bread Dumplings

By Anna Leigh Bagiackas

t's Oktoberfest season and you've got your schnitzel and your wurst (sausages), Hefeweizen beer and Riesling wine. A lesser known, but no less delicious German dish to try is Semmelknödel, or Bavarian bread dumplings. As we celebrate the season donning our lederhosen and dirndl and yelling our fair share of "Prost!" we look to Bavaria and Munich's legendary festival to inspire our cooking.

This dumpling is one of many regional dumplings you can find throughout Germany. It can be a comforting and warm main or side dish, especially during the fall and winter months. While this dumpling is primarily made up of bread, other variations can include potatoes or meat, and it is often served with red cabbage. These dumplings are distinctly remembered because of their size, which is generous; they are hearty and are perfect for sopping up a delicious sauce. Deepen your German culinary repertoire by making your own batch of these classic Bavarian dumplings this Oktoberfest season.

Semmelknödel

Serves: 4
Start to finish: 1 hour

1 lb. stale white bread slices or bread rolls

2 cups whole milk, warmed

1 tablespoon butter

1 onion, finely diced

1 medium bunch parsley, finely chopped

2 eggs, whisked

1 tablespoon sour cream or crème fraiche

1/4 teaspoon nutmeg

2 tablespoons all-purpose flour, plus more as needed

Salt and pepper to taste

Slice or rip bread into 1-inch pieces. Add to bowl, pour in warm milk and cover. Soak for 30 to 40 minutes.

Meanwhile, heat the butter in a pan on medium heat. Add onions and sauté until softened, about 8 minutes. Off heat, stir in parsley and set aside to cool.

Whisk together eggs, sour cream, nutmeg, salt and pepper in medium bowl. Pour over the soaked bread and stir to combine. Then stir in the cooled onion and parsley mixture into the bread and eggs. Knead until the dough is well combined.

If the dough is too wet and sticky, gradually add flour until you have a firm dough that is easier to work with. Form the dough into eight balls using lightly floured hands.

Bring a large pot of salted water or vegetable broth to boil. Reduce to a simmer and add the dumplings. Cook for 15 to 20 minutes or until done. The dumplings will float to the surface when they are done.

Using a slotted spoon, remove the dumplings and place on a paper towel-lined plate to strain.

Serve and enjoy! ■
